

A note on group hand in

The first assignment is individual. The remaining group works. Each group hand in only once. For each of the group assignments there will be defined a sufficiently large number of group hand in slots. In Absalon this is called Group sets (Group Set 2, Group Set 3, etc.). These will be empty from start. You have to form the groups yourself. To allow you to change group from assignment to assignment you need to form your groups as many times as there are group assignments.

Before upload the group should register. This is done selecting people and then the relevant Group Set at the Absalon course page. You register by drawing your name from the list on the left column to the next free group. The first in a group becomes the Group leader. He/she may then invite the other group members to join (using the same procedure). This ensures that all group members will receive feedback from the TA.

I suggest that you test the group forming procedure at an exercise before you have to hand in. For that purpose an group test assignment named TESTassignment is created with Group Set named Test Group Set.
